People like to be well - dressed, but rarely ask themselves what the clothes they are wearing are made from. In fact, thousands of animals are killed everyday so that rich people can enjoy wearing the most fashionable and trendiest clothes. Some animals, such as guinea pigs and rabbits, are used for scientific research. Mice and other animals are experimented upon by scientists working for companies involved in the manufacture of shampoos that we use, to keep our hair clean and to look good. We even kill whales, whose oil is used to make expensive soaps or make up. Other animals, the arctic fox, for example, are killed for their fur, which is used in the manufacture of expensive coats. Elephants are killed for their ivory, which is made into jewellery. Crocodiles are killed for their skin, which is used to make shoes. Often these animals are treated with great cruelty. Some of them are in danger of becoming extinct. Increasingly, individual people and organizations are working to protect these animals. The first step in this direction was taken when the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (RSPCA) was established all over the world. The RSPCA calls on governments to set up nature reserves to protect such animals. It is illegal to kill any animal on these reserves and at the same time, strict action has been taken against illegal hunting wherever it occurs in the world. The RSPCA also asks people to stop buying and wearing products from endangered animals.
